

ABINGTON PUBLIC LIBRARY YOUNG ADULT INTERNET/COMPUTER USE POLICY

The Abington Public Library endeavors to develop collections, resources and services that meet the informational, educational, cultural and recreational needs of the community. It is within this context that the Abington Public Library offers access to the Internet

The Public Library does not monitor and has no control over the information accessed through the Internet and cannot be held responsible for content or quality. As with other Library materials, restriction of a minor's access to the Internet is the responsibility of the parent or legal guardian, not the Library staff. It is the policy of the Abington Public Library to use filtering software only on the Internet Workstation in Children's Room. Filtering Software is not a substitute for careful parental supervision.

- Patrons may use the Young Adult Internet Workstation on a first-come first-served basis. Computers may not be reserved in advance. Users agree to limit their time to one hour in one session per day. The library staff will strictly enforce time limits.
- Email, chat groups and social networking sites are expressly forbidden on the Young Adult Workstation.
- Computer users must respect the privacy of library patrons around them. Disruptive behavior or behavior which is disturbing to other library patrons will be dealt with according to the Abington Public Library's Code of Conduct.
- All of the Library computer terminals are located in open areas of the building and sites accessed must be limited to those appropriate for viewing in a public space. All computer privileges will be revoked for those who do not comply.
- Patrons are advised that they have no expectations of privacy in Library computers and, therefore any information or data stored on Library computers may be accessed, (see Abington Public Library Privacy Policy).
- Any intentional attempt to add or alter files on a Library computer is considered destruction of property and will be subject to prosecution under Massachusetts law (M.G.L. Chapter 266, Sections 99 and 100). No disk or CD-ROM may be inserted, except on word processing stations. Unauthorized shut down of the computers is prohibited.
- Printing from Internet and computers is 10 cents a page on Library paper only. Payment may be made at the Circulation Desk.
- Computers will automatically shut down starting 15 minutes before the closing of the Library. Users must be ready to end their computer session at that time.
